ATOS Wellness names Johnson Teh new non-executive director

21 October 2009: Wellness and health care company ATOS Wellness Limited (ASX: ATW) has appointed Johnson Teh as a non-executive director.

Johnson is the Managing Director of Black Swan Equity Partners, a private equity investment group based in Asia that focuses on pre-IPO investment and management buyout opportunities.

Johnson has over 14 years of business and investment experience in a wide range of commercial, oil & gas and real estate activities. He has vast experience in private equity, investment banking and corporate advisory, comprising initial public offerings, corporate restructuring, mergers and acquisitions, equity fund raising, equity-linked financing and, in particular, experience in investment transactions in Greater China and Asia.

Before joining the Black Swan Equity Partners Group, Johnson was with the Investment Banking Group of the Overseas Chinese Banking Corporation in Singapore, in which he was involved in initial public offerings and fund raising activities.

Prior to joining the finance sector, Johnson was a forensic accountant with Ernst & Young, during which he performed forensic accounting advisory work in the Asia Pacific. His areas of specialisation were fraud investigations and anti-money laundering. He was also involved in the investigation of the top 3 largest frauds in Asia.

Johnson has an extensive business network within Asia and currently holds multiple directorships in companies in Singapore and Australia. He holds a Bachelor of Commerce from the University of New South Wales and is an associate member with the Institute of Certified Fraud Examiners, USA.

Executive Director Jitto Arulampalam said "We are delighted to have someone of Johnson's calibre and extensive business network join our growing company. He brings a wealth of experience gained across the investment banking industry adding more depth to the current board."
