

ASX ANNOUNCEMENT 13 JULY 2010

SYAMA OPERATIONS

Resolute Mining Limited advises of an interruption to its Syama operations.

The pinion bearing on Mill 1 suffered a failure and is in the process of being replaced. The replacement bearing and specialist installation personnel are due at site later this week.

Overall the mill is expected to be down for two weeks and while there will be no new production during this period, gold will still be produced from roaster operation through the run down of concentrate stockpiles.

The Syama operation is mid way through a thorough overhaul of its operating and maintenance regimes and this unfortunate event interrupts one of its most consistent operating periods, with the plant achieving all target key performance indicators over the last four weeks.

The Company had cash and bullion of approximately $27 million on hand at 30 June 2010 and this interruption is not expected to have any material impact on its financial position.
