

ASX ANNOUNCEMENT

ASX: RBO | 29 May 2017

Robo commencing delivery of Robo R2 pre-orders

HIGHLIGHTS

- Robo R2 ready for delivery to pre-order customers
- Re-confirms Robo R2 pre-orders of over A$800,000
- Advanced discussions with new international distributors

Robo 3D Limited (“Robo” or the “Company”), the emerging company delivering award-winning products for the desktop segment of the 3D printing industry, is pleased to announce that it will commence delivering its new Robo R2 printers to pre-order customers, as advised on 11 May 2017.

Following an extensive period of testing, Robo is pleased to advise that its San Diego warehouse has received the first shipment of Robo R2 printers from the Foxconn production facility, and will now commence delivering these printers to its pre-order customers.

Commenting on this milestones, Co-Founders Braydon Moreno and Coby Kabili stated:

“After over 24 months of planning, design, and execution on our Robo R2 3D printer, we are proud to see the next step in our vision for 3D printing coming to life. Robo R2 is the next generation of smart 3D printing — intuitive, easy to use and accessible, with a robust set of wish list features that will enable professionals, designers, entrepreneurs, hobbyists, and educators to excel in bringing their ideas to life in 3D.”

The Company has been actively pre-selling Robo R2 to existing customers, including wholesale, retail, and direct-to-consumer, and is pleased to re-confirm that it has received over A$800,000 in pre-orders for its first shipment of Robo R2 printers.

Robo is buoyed by the level of interest in its new products — Robo C2, Robo R2 and Robo App — and continues to advance numerous discussions to expand its sales and distribution footprint globally.
