SYCOM INTERFACE/WORKSTATION WEEKEND RE-BOOT

To assist Participants in the management of their SYCOM Workstation and Interface environment the SFE has identified a role for an automated SYCOM terminal shutdown utility. From this weekend this utility will ensure that all SYCOM Workstations and Interfaces that are powered on are automatically re-booted on Sunday evenings prior to the SYCOM system coming on-line. This procedure will ensure all Participants SYCOM terminals whether powered on or off will regularly complete their standard shut down procedures with regard to log compression and data tables thereby improving system integrity.

This procedure also complements the SYCOM Interface Auto Logon Utility as it removes the requirement for the Participant to both re-boot and manually logon their SYCOM Interfaces. Participants who wish to request more information or installation of the Auto Logon Utility please email interface@sfe.com.au or refer to Screen Dealing Bulletin 005/03.

Participants are advised that there may be times when there is a need to physically re-boot their SYCOM terminals, this could be due to SYCOM emergency procedures or hardware failure which may prevent SFE from automatically re-booting their SYCOM terminals over a weekend. Should this occur, Participants should have adequate resources available to physically re-boot their SYCOM terminals. This should be of particular note for Participants who have SYCOM Interfaces in secure data centres or offshore.

Rollout
