29 August 2016

The Challenger gold mine was brought back into production in May 2016 by the former joint venture, which was managed by WPG. The acquisition of the former joint venture partner's interest, effective from 1 August 2016, has doubled WPG's share of production as well WPG's attributable share of gold contained in Challenger's resources and reserves.

Challenger is located close to WPG's existing Tarcoola and Tunkillia projects in the Gawler Craton which will provide significant operating synergies for all of WPG's assets. Production of gold at Tarcoola is anticipated to commence later this year.

The Company's Executive Chairman Bob Duffin said "The investment metrics for doubling our interest in Challenger alone are compelling. But in addition, the transaction avoids the need to process Tarcoola ore at Challenger under a costly toll treating arrangement, and it has also doubled WPG's exposure to the exploration upside potential of the Western Gawler Craton Joint Venture".

Although WPG has acquired its joint venture partner's interest in the Challenger project, DMPL remains one of WPG's larger shareholders, and PYBAR Mining Services, a company related to DMPL, is the mining contractor at Challenger. WPG looks forward to building on these strong relationships.
