DROPSUITE SIGNS PLATFORM PARTNERSHIP WITH ATOMIA

- Partnership allows Atomia's SMB end users to back up their data with just one click
- Distinctive software partnership will target Atomia's 1.5 million SMB end users throughout Europe

Dropsuite Limited (ASX: DSE) (Dropsuite) is pleased to announce that it has begun rolling out its suite of backup products through a partnership with Sweden-based Atomia AB (Atomia) with the unique One-Click Website Data Continuity technical integration available to Atomia's 1.5 million small-to-medium business (SMB) end users.

This software partnership will allow any SMB logged into the Atomia platform to activate website data backup using One-Click Website Data Continuity by pressing a single red button featured prominently within the dashboard.

The Atomia Cloud Hosting Platform is one of the world's most flexible hosting and billing software solutions that provides all the administration and end-user tools for shared hosting, Virtual private server (VPS) hosting, domain and Domain Name System (DNS) providers.

Charif Elansari, Chief Executive Officer of Dropsuite, said:

"Atomia offers end users a state of the art hosting experience, which Dropsuite can now be an integral part of.

"Website data backup is one of those things that many SMBs erroneously think is already being protected. But when their website files are suddenly compromised, deleted, or lost due to human error, malware or a hack attack, a business can be severely impacted with days of downtime, lost sales, and hours of wasted time trying to restore old files — if they even have them.

"We are excited to work with Atomia to offer a super-simple way for SMBs to have a fully automated website and data file backup solution in place with just one click."

One of Atomia's first customers to roll out the new One-Click Data Continuity service is Norway-based web hosting company Serve The World, which provides services to over 10,000 SMBs.

Magnus Hult, Chief Executive Officer of Atomia, said:

"Dropsuite's data backup solution is a fantastic addition to our hosting software.

"It's a deceptively simple problem to solve, so to have an easily deployed, automated backup service in place is
