Multiple opportunities to boost monetisation

ChimpChange and Hollar share a very similar customer demographic in the US.

The companies also share a close understanding that the millennial value proposition is very much about mobile commerce, value for money, convenience and personalised experiences.

The Company is excited about the multiple opportunities this partnership presents to grow and monetise its customer base.

The first step in the partnership will see Hollar paying a fee to ChimpChange when customers transact on the Hollar platform. Part of this fee will be channelled into a cashback promotion for ChimpChange customers to transact on the Hollar platform.

This has the effect of opening a new revenue stream for ChimpChange, driving more spending and interchange revenue, and improving the value proposition of the ChimpChange digital bank account.

Ash Shilkin, Founder and Managing Director of ChimpChange, said:

"This partnership is an exciting strategic initiative for ChimpChange on several fronts.

"The partnership with Hollar demonstrates our ability to monetise our growing customer base beyond our existing revenue streams, and it provides a timely opportunity for ChimpChange to work with an exciting innovator in retail technology to drive growth.

"This partnership is the first in a number of opportunities we are working on. We are looking forward to developing a long-term multi-faceted relationship together which benefits our Customers and our shareholders."
