Xped targets cost savings and greater efficiency with organisational re-structure

Emerging Australian Internet of Things (IoT) technology company, Xped Limited (ASX: XPE) (“Xped” or “the Company”), today announced an organisational re-structure, targeting significantly reduced expenditure and increased efficiency of the Company’s Board and Management.

As part of the re-organisation, Athan Lekkas will resign as CEO but will remain a Director, Managing Director Martin Despain and Director Dr Wenjun Sheng will resign from the Board but both remain as Xped consultants, while John Schultz has tendered his resignation as a Director. These latest changes follow the appointment earlier this month of Peter Hunt as Non-Executive Chairman of Xped

“The company believes that significant cost savings and business development benefits will be realised immediately by the re-organisation while simultaneously freeing up Athan, Martin, and Wenjun to focus on their critical business development roles within Xped’s operations,” Mr Hunt said.

“The outcome of these changes will positively impact the company balance sheet this financial year with fixed operating costs reducing by a further $1 million in the current financial year,” he said.

CEO

Mr Lekkas has tendered his resignation as CEO but will remain as a Director. Mr Lekkas has provided a six-month notice period to allow for a smooth transition once a suitable replacement has been found. Over this time he will continue operational and business development activities with the Group, focusing on the forthcoming revenue expected from Lenze and other new business development initiatives.

The Board thanks Mr Lekkas for his commitment to Xped. He has attracted in excess of $25 million in capital for Xped (and former company Raya Group) and was ultimately responsible for

The Board thanks Mr Despain for his significant contribution as a Director and looks forward to continuing working with him to grow Xped's business.

As part of the new engagement, Mr Despain will be remunerated and incentivised as follows:

Dr Sheng will also continue to provide strategic advice on product development of Xped's ADRC technology with Telink's product roadmap.
