

Clarification of media article

Sydney, 17 October 2018 – Identitii Limited (“Identitii” or the “Company”) (ASX: ID8), an Australian FinTech enabling the secure overlay of transaction level detail on top of financial messages using a private blockchain, wishes to clarify points made in an article (“the Article”) in today’s AFR, titled “Identitii hits ASX as banks look to blockchain to monitor payments”.

The Article referenced HSBC as using Identitii’s blockchain technology. As outlined in the Company’s Prospectus, Identitii has a global framework agreement with HSBC, a top 20 global bank, and a version of Serra only has been deployed in production in India. With this customer, Serra is deployed using the traditional database instead of using blockchain.

The Company will make the necessary disclosures at the relevant time when discussions with other banks become material.
