Asian Integrated Media Limited

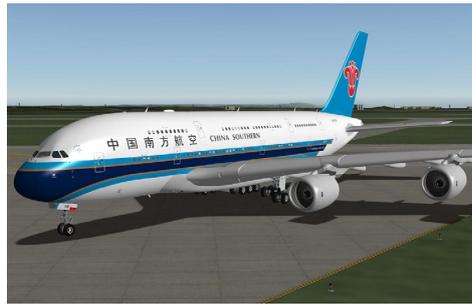

Asian Integrated Media signs global representation deal with Chinese aviation technology company, TD Link to manage 10 Chinese airlines.

TD Link

Technology and Development

AIM has signed a contract with Chinese based airline supplier TD Link, part owned by the Blue Focus Group, to represent 10 Chinese airlines for their in-flight media sales across all international markets, including the main 3 international carriers: Air China, China Southern and China Eastern.

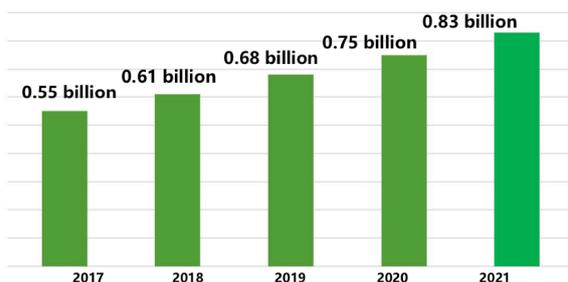

Together, the size of the inflight media audience accessed across all of the se airlines is in excess of 40 million passengers per month. This is in addition to AIM’s existing contracts representing Cathay Pacific and Cathay Dragon. Along with AIM’s digital programmatic channel ‘China Elite’ AIM provides international brands with unrivalled opportunities to engage with the fast growing Chinese travel market.

International travellers from China now constitute the largest international travel market in the world with travellers spending in excess of US$235billion per year

Quote: Peter Jeffery, AIM CEO & Founder:

“China is fast becoming one of the world’s leading aviation markets. This agreement to work with every major airline in China is a tremendous addition to our existing portfolio and we can now provide brands with multiple channels to reach the Chinese travel market. We are delighted to be working with TD Link to provide the opportunity for AIM’s advertiser client base to promote their brands specifically within the China market. This deal compliments so much of what our company is already doing working with many of the world’s leading airlines and our China Elite digital advertising and programmatic advertising platform”.
