

Corum Executive Management Changes

Corum Group Limited (ASX:COO) advises the appointment of Julian Sallabank as Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director as Corum enters its next phase.

Julian brings to Corum vast experience in senior executive and Board roles for both private and public companies operating across a range of sectors including medical technologies. Previously, Julian held the role of Managing Director of an early stage medical research and innovation fund that collaborates with the Murdoch Children's Research Institute.

David Clarke has resigned as Chief Executive Officer, Managing Director and Company Secretary effective 31 August 2020 to pursue other interests.

Corum Chairman, Nick England, said "I have known and worked with Julian for many years and he brings a track record of growing businesses and driving value. The Board would like to thank David for his contribution over the past seven years across his senior executive roles and wish him well with his future endeavours".

Authorised by the Board of Directors.
