Interim decision reached on scheduling of CBD

ECS Botanics Ltd (ASX: ECS or the Company) is pleased to advise that the National Advisory Committee on Medicines Scheduling (ACMS) and Advisory Committee on Chemicals Scheduling (ACCS), both committees within Australia's Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA), have announced today a decision to alter the schedule 4 listing of CBD.

The interim decision recommends CBD to be classified as schedule 3. This would see CBD available over-the-counter, that is without prescription, from pharmacies.

The second consultation period has a closing deadline of October 13 2020, with the announcement of the final decision on February 1 2021. From this date qualifying CBD products can be made available in Australia over the counter without a prescription.

ECS's outdoor grow medicinal cannabis project has a CBD focus and the Company is pleased to advise that the project is progressing, with construction having commenced. ECS looks forward to updating the market on its CBD project as it progresses, including how it will take advantage of the anticipated increased demand for CBD.

Additionally, ECS also looks forward to updating the market in regard to its hemp food business and its strategy to leverage the opportunity of hemp protein as an optimal, functional and high value plant protein source.

ECS Managing Director Alex Keach said:

"The regulatory environment and market are shifting in ECS's favour and we have a solid production base to leverage our plant-based business for medicinal and food, capturing the extraordinary and unique properties of industrial hemp & cannabis."
