2. Review of Operations

Overview

American Rare Earths is one of the few listed companies with exposure to the rapidly expanding US market, developing its 100% owned magnet metals projects, Halleck Creek in Wyoming and La Paz in Arizona. Both have potential to be among the largest rare earths deposits in North America. The company is concurrently evaluating other exploration opportunities while collaborating with US Government supported R&D to develop a sustainable domestic supply chain for the renewable future.

Halleck Creek Project: With a globally significant exploration target of over one billion tonnes of mineralised rare earth rocks, our 100% owned Halleck Creek district has the potential to be among the largest rare earths deposits in North America. The exploration team finalised the maiden drill program in December 2022 and has since received very encouraging assay results. The mineralogy tests showed ore can be liberated easily and will require less coarse grinding, meaning reduced costs. The Company remains committed to announcing a significant maiden JORC resource in the first quarter of calendar year 2023. With the addition of the Bluegrass area the Halleck Creek project has grown to over 6,000 acres, an area encompassing 24.5km²

La Paz Project: The project continues to move forward as planned with the goal to significantly increase the 170 million tonne JORC Resource. Drill permits were approved for the new southwest area of the project with a target estimate of 742 to 928 million tonnes with 350 to 400 TREO. The exploration target is additive to the existing JORC resource.

Environmental, Social & Governance (ESG)

During the reporting period there were zero safety, health and/or environmental incidents.

ESG is a key focus at American Rare Earths and is central to what we do. We are keenly aware of our role and responsibilities as temporary custodians of the concessions we explore/operate, as employers and leaders and as partners to the communities in which we work. We are shaping the future not only for American Rare Earths, but also the next generation.

Halleck Creek Rare Earths Project

The Halleck Creek Rare Earths project is 100% owned and is located in Wyoming. In September 2022 the Company was excited to share that the Halleck Creek exploration target increased by 328%, exceeding expectations. The mass of mineralised rocks in the new exploration target is more than three times larger than previously estimated with the updated target outlines 1.01 – 1.27 billion tonnes, an increase from the original target of 308 – 385 million tonnes.

Table 1 – Halleck	Creek Explorat	ion Target Estimates

The newly staked claim in the Bluegrass area, provided assay results with consistent rare earth mineralisation. The 71 samples collected in this area exhibited an average TREO value of 3051 ppm, and the highest observed level of TREO was 5,065 ppm. The Bluegrass area assay results indicated that rare earth enrichment continues east of Overton Mountain. Very low levels of penalty elements thorium and uranium were displayed in the results.

Halleck Creek - Red Mountain

Drill hole data from the recent 38-hole Reverse Circulation (RC) drill campaign completed in December show consistent occurrences of rare earth mineralisation to depths of 175.5 metres, an increase of 75.5% over previous drill depths with the deposit remaining open laterally and at depth. Geological data continues to show substantial rare earth mineralisation.

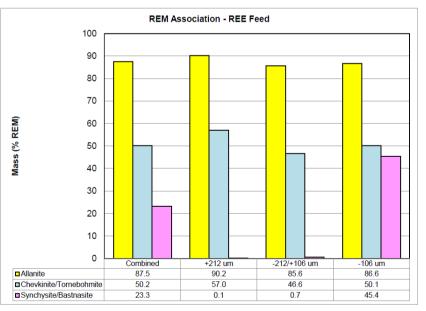

The Company was pleased to receive outstanding mineralogy results from our testing partners, SGS Canada with Nagrom completing the hydrostatic analysis. This test work showed that rare earth elements (REE) rich Allanite is the primary REE bearing mineral at the project. A coarse grain structure was observed which indicates the Allanite will respond well to standard Wet High-Intensity Magnetic Separation (WHIMS) with potentially high recoveries and upgrading of rare earth elements, including neodymium and praseodymium. Considerable reductions in operating costs for production facilities could be achieved off the back of this information.

Halleck Creek – Drill Core

Once the drilling results have been fully evaluated and verified the company expects to announce a maiden resource estimate at Halleck Creek in early 2023.

Metallurgical tests conducted on Halleck Creek samples, conducted by Wood Australia Pty Ltd (Wood), indicate low mining and processing costs due to the less abrasive ore which will require less coarse grinding and a reduction in energy costs, allowing for increased capacity. Crushing and grinding are major costs associated with processing so this less abrasive ore is a positive result. The ore strength ranked in the lowest 14th percentile of more than 1,300 deposits globally.

Liberation of Rare Earth Minerals by Size Fraction

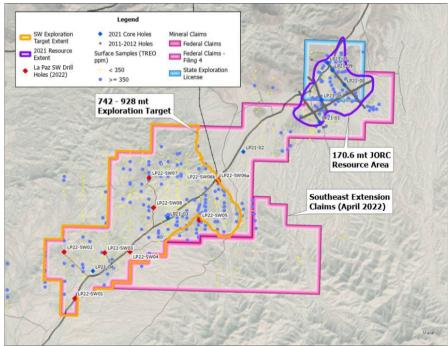

La Paz Rare Earths Project

The La Paz Rare Earths project is 100% owned by the Company's wholly owned US based subsidiary, La Paz Rare Earth LLC ("LPRE") and is located approximately 200km northwest of Phoenix, in mining friendly Arizona. The Project incorporates a 170.6 million tonnes JORC compliant resource close to key infrastructure. The current resource estimate encompasses only 10.2% of the project area and is open laterally and at depth.

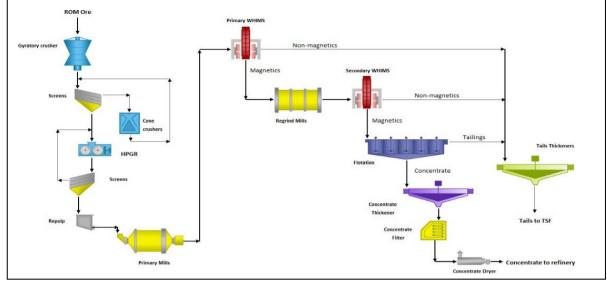

La Paz - Exploration Site

The large-scale project has the advantages of excellent grades of magnet rare earths elements (NdPr) as well as Scandium, and importantly negligible radioactive elements (thorium) which is unusual for rare earths projects.

La Paz - JORC and Exploration Target

Results of metallurgical test-work showed recovery rates of up to 66.4% TREO and 71.5% Scandium achieved and confirmed very low thorium and uranium penalty elements. With metallurgical test-work completed at La Paz the Company requested Wood use the results to develop a conceptual flowsheet for the La Paz concentrator. Further work will continue to build on the process and results.

Proposed Simplified La Paz Process Flowsheet

INDEPENDENT AUDITOR'S REVIEW REPORT TO THE MEMBERS OF AMERICAN RARE EARTHS LIMITED

A review of a half-year financial report consists of making enquiries, primarily of persons responsible for financial and accounting matters, and applying analytical and other review procedures. A review is substantially less in scope than an audit conducted in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards and consequently does not enable us to obtain assurance that we would become aware of all significant matters that might be identified in an audit. Accordingly, we do not express an audit opinion.
