Market Announcement

RETIREMENT OF CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER

ASX announces that, following a distinguished career in financial services, Chief Financial Officer (CFO) Andrew Tobin has advised the Group of his intention to retire.

Mr Tobin joined ASX in 2022 and has led the finance, treasury, strategy and corporate affairs teams through a period of significant change. During this time, he has strengthened financial discipline practices, supported ASX's strategic and transformation priorities, and provided steady leadership.

ASX Interim CEO Darren Yip said: "Andrew has made a significant contribution over the past four years as ASX navigated a demanding operating environment. I would like to thank Andrew for his service, and I am pleased he will support an orderly transition process as he has agreed to continue serving as CFO as we finalise the appointment of a successor."

As previously announced, Anthony Attia will commence as Chief Executive Officer on 1 September 2026. The appointment of the next CFO will be led by Mr Attia, supported by the Board, ensuring the decision is aligned with ASX's leadership transition and future strategic priorities.
