

CHES Release 1 AMO Accreditation and Operational Readiness

Today marks the start of the window during which CHES Release 1 AMO Accreditation and Operational Readiness activities can be undertaken.

Accreditation and Operation Readiness are mandatory assessments that Approved Market Operators (AMOs) are required to complete prior to Go-Live. The assessments are intended to verify that AMO Release 1 systems and processes can operate effectively and safely prior to transitioning into production.

Note: AMOs may rely on their Software Providers to perform AMO Accreditation on their behalf.

AMOs or their Software Providers are encouraged to schedule their accreditation assessment as early as possible, by submitting the necessary form to CHESreplacement@asx.com.au.

AMO Accreditation is a prerequisite to scheduling and completing the AMO Operational Readiness assessment. AMO Operational Readiness must be performed on accredited software installed in the AMO's own test environment.

The assessment window for Accreditation and Operational Readiness closes Friday 7 November 2025.

For further details of scheduling assessments and the scenarios to be completed, please refer to the guides listed below:
